

INTRODUCTION

This policy sets out the expectations for homework in each year group in our school. The Education Secretary (October 2018) stated that primary schools are not obliged to set homework but if they do, children should do it. In addition, he stated that head teachers should decide upon their own policies for homework to allow autonomy for individual schools.

Quality homework should be an integral part of learning. It should be purposeful, proportionate and have a positive impact on learning. It is expected that homework is achievable with limited support. Nevertheless, parental involvement makes a big difference to a child's educational development and it is therefore expected that families complete some of the tasks together.

At primary school level, homework should help children to:

- Develop their knowledge
- Encourage motivation and self-discipline of independent learning.
- Consolidate learning and practise basic skill, particularly in literacy and numeracy

We consider that frequent reading at home is vital and will form the basis of homework for this age group. Parental involvement is essential. Ten minutes sharing a short book is of far greater benefit than one longer session at the weekend.

Children will be expected to increase the amount of time spent on school related work at home as they progress through the school. Homework activities are designed to be short, frequent and age appropriate.

We appreciate that many of our children attend clubs and other out of hour's activities. It is essential that all of our children have sufficient time to develop holistically. All children need time to play, relax and rest. It is essential that all children are in bed at a reasonable time if they are to remain alert and receptive to learning the following day. Homework will not be set across school holidays or for children who miss school during term time owing to unauthorised holiday absence.

We recognise that for most children the school day is sufficiently challenging and that sometimes additional work may be counterproductive or cause friction between children and parents. Parents are encouraged to maintain dialogue with class teachers and discuss at an early stage any concerns or problems. Class teachers will share any concerns at an early stage with parents.

RECEPTION

Homework in Reception should take approximately 20 minutes to complete, each week. It will be posted on Tapestry for families to access. In addition to this, the children are expected to read, for ten minutes with an adult, each day. It is expected that the adult's record their child is reading in the reading record. ## INCOMPLETE HOMEWORK

On the occasions where homework is not completed in Reception, Key Stage One and Lower Key Stage two, a discussion between the teacher and pupil will be held. The children are asked to remember to complete the homework next week. If this continues, staff will communicate this with the families either at parents evening or before. In Upper Key Stage Two, the children will be allowed to turn in their homework or bring it in the next day. If this does not happen they will be asked to complete it during a break time. These procedures help each child to form good habits in preparation for Secondary school.
